

WANT TO KNOW WHAT BABIES NEED? Try Using Sign Language for Hearing Babies!

- Do you become frustrated when babies cry and you don't know why?
- Would you like to communicate with infants & toddlers before they can speak? (Babies as young as 6-36 months old can sign!)
- Would you like to learn from someone whose teaching approach is fun, engaging, and very effective?

It's amazing, but true! In just one workshop, you can learn over 100 American Sign Language signs to communicate with infants and toddlers while they are still too young to speak. Whereas it can take as long as two to three years for a child to begin speaking efficiently, babies as young as 6 - 36 months can use signs to communicate their needs, wants and feelings. Research indicates that children who learn how to use sign language as babies tend to have better reading, writing and verbal skills later in life, and possibly higher IQ scores. School-aged children also LOVE to sign!

Denise Meyer's workshops have been featured nationally on PBS, on NBC,ABC, and UPN news affiliates, and in numerous magazine and newspaper articles, including Minneapolis Star and Tribune, St. Paul Pioneer Press, Early Childhood News, Baby Times and Minnesota Parent.
